

Messenger

Vol. 7 No. 8

August, 2009

Marketingology

As we explore ways to make our services or products sell faster and take over more market share, we must be cognizant of marketing techniques. Marketing creates a knowledge of products or services that people desire and are willing to exchange money for their possession. Marketing is very important. Marketing today is what brings in business for tomorrow. It is what convinces your old customers to return for additional products or services. If done correctly, marketing can keep you in business or it can put you out of business if not done correctly. It is because of this reason that The Mathis Group has developed marketingology.

What is Marketingology?

Marketingology is the process of obtaining and retaining customer relationships for long, endless business. It also creates a desire from a target group to want your products or service. Marketingology is created with the end user in mind. The Mathis Group desires to educate you with the important information to allow your marketing dollars to work for you at a faster rate and a faster response. Does this mean that all your future marketing efforts will be successful? Unfortunately, no. There are never any guarantees when it comes to marketing. We can have the right method or media of marketing, but the wrong message. We might have the correct message, but the wrong target group. We can have the right target group and message, but use the wrong type of media. Marketingology seeks to reduce the risk, not guarantee there is no risk.

When you use these principles, you learn how to create campaigns that have a higher potential of success because you have all the right ingredients included. One of the most exciting things an organization can do is to become aggressive and go after customers. Plant seeds for new customers. This takes the support of the entire company, and getting involvement from others will be an asset. Every organization must focus their attention on marketing to gain customers and move the company to stronger stability.

Getting Started

To get started in the right direction, you must discuss the need for marketing and brainstorming different target groups and demographics. When we get others involved, we reduce the resistance from the organization. The following steps will help you introduce marketing and marketing concepts to everyone:

Create a marketing team

When organizing a marketing team, you must have a balance of people who are creative and those who are detail oriented. Your team must have the

(continued on page 2 Marketingology)

There is a time to let things happen and a time to make things happen.

Hugh Prather
Minister and counselor

The Mathis Group's Messenger

(continued from page 1 Marketingology)

freedom to discuss possible marketing techniques that might sound crazy or extremely out of bounds. If this freedom is allowed, you will notice numerous ideas and suggestions surfacing. Choose people you trust and have already demonstrated a degree of success or interest in the marketing efforts of the organization.

Conduct a marketing audit

Conducting a marketing audit will help determine which areas of the marketing process have worked in the past. A good audit will examine the target market, segmentation, and media being used to reach the desired audience. It may also include examinations of customer satisfaction ratings and how much of the market share your organization presently holds. You will need to interview customers for future needs and desires to allow you to see where your customer base is headed. Find out which media forms the customer uses: types of magazines, associations in which they participate, or television and radio stations. The audit allows the marketing team the opportunity to make plans based on data and research rather than preconceived notions.

Create a position or responsibility for all marketing efforts

Giving responsibility to team members creates buy-in for the team. One frustration of many teams is that people do not follow-up or take the necessary responsibility needed to be successful. To prevent this from happening, create an accountability system which follows-up on team members. Have someone who is willing to confront a person if he or she does not come through with the given assignment.

Compare old and new marketing processes

Keep the part of marketing which is working for you, and change those areas which are costing money and producing little. In order to do this, your team must examine the marketing processes. Examine the old marketing process, and determine how you are presently gaining customers. Which areas of marketing do you know for sure bring customers into your organization? How do you know this media is bringing in customers, and how many customers have been brought in? All of these answers point out how you can better use your marketing money. Examine new marketing processes. The new marketing processes are those areas you expect to help reach your target market faster. When looking at new marketing processes, you must try to do things differently than you have ever done. By incorporating new methods of marketing into your organization, you may find new customers along the way.

Check out our exciting courses at

www.themathisgroup.com!!

Marketingology

Advanced Sales Skills

Contact The Mathis Group today to receive our catalog of complete course listings or to discuss your customized onsite seminar.

The Mathis Group, Inc

Dr. Keith Mathis

106 Lakeview Woods

Eureka, MO 63025

800-224-3731

636/938-5292 voice/fax

keith@themathisgroup.com

www.themathisgroup.com

www.pmexpertlive.com

www.trainthegov.com

GSA Contractor - GS02F-0010V
Project Management Institute REP